NECPS Mission Statement

"The mission of the New England Carnivorous Plant Society shall be to share, to gain knowledge of, and to achieve expertise in all phases of growing, education, appreciation, and conservation of carnivorous plants in both culture and in native habitats."

President's Message

What a show we just had! By far the most successful, best show ever for the New England Carnivorous Plant Society!

This year we had 500 people come in and enjoy the plants we love to grow and show. We had more members participate, and as always we had the most amazing plants around. We were featured on the television, Channel 6 (Providence) news on Saturday night, and the Providence Journal did a web story about us on ProJo.com. All this despite about the worst weather one could imagine on the weekend of the show.

But the most important thing, we ALL had fun, learned more, swapped plants, bought plants, and got to talk to many people about the plants we grow. Isn't that the point of all this that we do, to enjoy even more the things we love, the plants, and the fellow members of the society? To share the knowledge and love with others in the society, and with the public?

In January 2003 we didn't have any of this, we were just a bunch of people meeting to get together and talk about Carnivorous Plants. But now we have a wonderfully successful show and a plant society that people want to be a part of. And we are growing better plants, more plants, doing more things than ever before. All this because of the members, the people who participate in the society, continue to elevate it to new heights.

Congratulations to all the members, to all of us for what we have become, and what we will continue to do in the future! Congratulations for the show, and a job well done! I cannot wait to see what comes next!

Namaste,

John Phillip, Jr
President and Founder

"Post-Show Celebration & Wrap-Up Discussion"

WOW! This year's show was, in this writer's humble opinion, the best ever. The exact numbers will be available at Saturday's meeting, but there were over 300 plants on display and over 500 visitors, beating last year's attendance.

The plants displays were organized, professional-looking, and typed information cards accompanied each plant. The lectures covered a wide variety of topics and were well-attended, from a discussion about South African CPs to selling carnivorous plants on Ebay. Our first "ugly pot" contest was a smash and was won by Bill Matthews who must have gone out of his way to find such a hideous piece of pottery! The VFT feeding station amazed onlookers of all ages and the "CP painting and drawing" station was a hit with the kids. The vendors did well. A local news crew shot a VIDEO of the show, starring our beloved President, John Phillip (visit www.projo.com/video/?nvid=287585).

The program for this meeting will include show wrap-up discussion, welcome to all our new members, and, most importantly, showing off all the great plants we got at the show! Come and learn to grow your new flytrap, or brag about what you won at the silent auction!

Other business:

- There WILL be a silent auction and plants on display. Members are encouraged to contribute.

CP Tidbit for October

The summer's heat has left and the early autumn winds begin to blow the cold air our way, it is time to start putting the outside beds to sleep and to bring the tropicals that have summered outside in for the winter. Some ideas and thoughts for fall:

- Always, always check plants for bugs when bringing them inside. This includes the soil for nasties that hide there. A good way to eliminate these is to soak the pots with the plants in water for an hour or so before bringing them in. Simply put the entire pot into a bucket or tray of water, submerging the pot till the soil line is about an inch below the surface of the water. MOST insects will come out with this treatment. Several years ago I found a hornet nest in a slat basket plant that would have come in, had I not gone this!
- Spraying plants with a strong spray of water will dislodge many insects. Do this outside, and they will stay out.
- Check the underside of leaves especially for insects. I often use a q tip or cotton ball dipped in rubbing alcohol to remove insects.
- I always like to keep outside plants together when brought inside, and TRY NEVER to mix them with plants that have stayed in all summer. Plants grown inside never seem to be as tough as those that summer outside, and when outside pests do make it in (and some always seem to), the more tender plants seems to suffer more damage, more quickly. Keeping these plants separated if possible minimizes damage.
- Bring the plants in according to the hardiness of the plants. I bring the tropical lowland nep's from my somewhat heated greenhouse first, but leave the highlanders and cloud forest orchids till later. Some plants, like cymbidium and masdevallia orchids enjoy the cooler temps of early autumn and will reward you with flowers later. Recent studies show that possibly some pygmy sundews benefit from cool to very cool (NOT freezing) temps.
- Start clearing the weeds from pots and outside bogs now, but don't mulch these in till after the first freeze.

- Inspect the plants as you bring them in and make note of any that will need repotting this fall, winter or spring. Doing this now lets you look for the right repotting materials earlier, and get prepared for the task when it comes.
- Trim off dead material now, of course. All sorts of nasties can hide in dead plant material. Weed the plants also, for the same reason.

BE VERY CAREFUL WITH FEEDING at this time of year! Too much feeding can result in a growth spurt, and with the lower light levels of fall, the growth will be weaker and more susceptible to bugs and infection.
