"The mission of the New England Carnivorous Plant Society shall be to share, to gain knowledge of, and to achieve expertise in all phases of growing, education, appreciation, and conservation of carnivorous plants in both culture and in native habitats."

President's Message

Is winter finally over? Maybe it is here in southern New England, finally, though as I write this the weatherman is talking about snow in 7 mid-western states today! Mother Nature has a way of reminding us who is in charge.

Last year at this time, we were in the midst of a drought and temps way to warm for the season. I remember last year being in a bog in eastern CT the second week in April, in 75 F temps! The bog was almost bone dry from the drought, and there was an extremely high fire danger, according to the conservation officer I was speaking with. This year we have wind, rain, and cooler temperatures to contend with, and to grow our plants in. Each year in New England it seems the weather changes from the previous year and we are presented with new obstacles for growing the plants we love.

One thing stays the same: the NECPS annual pilgrimage to Logee's Greenhouse in CT. Time has no effect on Logee's Greenhouses, you can see from the size of the stock plants they have each day!

I hope to see you all at Logee's for our annual visit, and I hope many of you bring plants to show off and to share your growing stories with others. After all, isn't that a big part of what the NECPS is about?

See you all there!

NECPS Program for January Annual Logee's Get-Together

This month features our eagerly anticipated annual Logee's greenhouse get-togethers. This meeting is more casual than usual – the two prime items on the agenda are usually...

- Enjoy each other's company, and...
- Run through the greenhouse, buying plants indiscriminately.

We hope to see you all there!
